Mid-level Producer / Project Manager (f/m/d)

Berlin, full-time

About onformative

Guided by an emotional approach, we are constantly searching for new forms of creative expression. Through an experimental practice we are creating meaningful works to challenge the boundaries between art, design and technology. The outcomes and interpretations of our work take on varying forms across media through self-initiated and commissioned projects that range from interactive media installations, generative design and dynamic visuals to data-driven narratives. As a studio for digital art and design we highly value collaboration and believe in the power of the creative hivemind. Within our small, experienced core team we foster an engaging work culture based on flat hierarchies and high competencies.

What you can expect

You enjoy working with creatives and support them in becoming better at what they do? As a producer at onformative you'll be in charge of your own projects. Together with one of onformative's creative leads you will guide the team through projects for our existing and new business partners. You'll have the opportunity to conduct projects from the first enquiry, help define the conditions and framework on which they operate and oversee them from a budget and timing standpoint together with the executive producer. You will act as a service provider for both clients and your own internal team, creating fluent and effective communication internally and externally. The protection of the creative team and at the same time taking care that a project's objectives are fulfilled are daily business for you.
