

Creative Producer (f/m/d)

Berlin, full-/part-time

To the creative producers (f/m/d) out there who are seeking new experiences in a dynamic and future-shaping field: we are looking for a person to support and guide our team to new horizons!

about us

We're onformative, a leading design studio with diverse projects spanning various disciplines, from classic motion design to abstract art installation to very applied software development. Our projects are unique, challenging the boundaries of creativity and technology.

what makes us special

We foster a culture of creativity and collaboration, with teams comprising artists from diverse backgrounds. Our projects explore a range of creative fields, including motion design, procedural and generative design, interactive experiences, and emerging technologies.

the role

As a creative producer, you'll play a pivotal role in shaping our projects' direction. Collaborating closely with the creative director, you'll infuse innovative thinking into project development and have the opportunity to manage projects independently. Simultaneously, you'll oversee project logistics, including finances and schedules, ensuring smooth execution from start to finish. You'll be the one who has the overview and takes care of coordinating the overall project landscape.

we're looking for you who

- likes to orchestrate projects across various creative fields, including abstract image worlds (still and motion), real-time and procedural workflows, spatial installations, and visual design for emerging technologies
- excels at team-building and collaboration, fostering synergies among people in diverse disciplines
- approaches challenges with determination and creativity, driving projects forward with a positive attitude
- builds strong client relationships
- brings experience in motion design and creative software development
- strives through co-creative and process thinking
